Dylan Jones from DWR Distribution in South Africa had an incredible time at the Barco Train the Trainer Session for the new Encore 3 platform. It was an eye-opening experience, highlighting Barco's relentless push for innovation.

The intensive three-day course on Image Processing using the Barco Encore 3 and held at Barco's headquarters in Belgium, brought together delegates from around the world. As a result, they are now prepared to deliver effective training sessions within their respective regions.

“The best part of the training was meeting the representatives from different countries around the world and discussing how they do things compared to us. Delegates from Japan and Korea, were particularly impressive, especially considering the language barrier,” said Dylan Jones, who represents Barco at DWR Distribution. “I got to see the Encore 3 for the first time in person and explore the new Event Master Toolset software. The session ended with delegates taking in all they had learned over the three days and presenting a training session back to the class and instructors with discussion on the best ways to present the course effectively.”

Barco Encore 3 is a state of the art video processor that delivers exceptional native 4K image quality with best-in-class Athena scaling and ultra-low processing latency down to 16ms. The Encore 3 provides access to a boundless canvas at 12-bit 4:4:4 processing with no fewer than 16 fully capable 4K60 layers per screen.

“This was an amazing training experience and a big thank you to the Barco team for their expertise and support,” Dylan concludes. “I’m proud to be a certified trainer and eager to share my knowledge with all the Barco operators throughout Africa.”
