DWR Durban Offices Are Officially Open!

DWR Distribution officially opened its new Durban offices on 1 September.

What an evening it was! More than 100 friends, clients and industry colleagues joined us to celebrate, and we couldn't have asked for a better welcome. The incredible turnout and support made the evening especially meaningful for the DWR team.

Michael Taylor-Broderick leads the Durban team, along with Nick Barnes and Jade Manicom.

They're ready to make the new office a welcoming home for DWR Distribution in KwaZulu-Natal.

"Thank you to everyone for joining us on this special evening; we were overwhelmed with the turnout," said Michael. "It's wonderful to have a space we can call our home. Even though we haven't been away, we are back. It's just great to know we can invite clients over for demos, that training becomes easier, and to have a chat over coffee."

The new space has been designed with the industry in mind, featuring a dedicated demo room where clients can experience products firsthand, a fully stocked warehouse, and a dedicated training facility named in honour of the late Roy Wood – a fitting tribute to someone who made a lasting contribution to our industry.

Durban, we're here – and we're looking forward to seeing you!
