After spending nearly two weeks in Belgium, a charming and inviting country renowned for its chocolates, beers, and waffles, Dylan Jones from DWR Distribution returns from his trip to Barco with a sense of excitement and happiness, eager to share his newly acquired knowledge. In the photo above, you can see him standing with Maxime Debusschere from Barco, right at the entrance of the company's headquarters, and he extends his heartfelt thanks for the warm hospitality he received.

“It was truly an amazing trip,” Dylan enthusiastically exclaims. “The training focused on projection and image processing, and I must say it was both challenging and humbling. Barco is a high-quality product, known for its intricacy and excellence. There are many South Africans who already own Barco products, and DWR is looking forward to providing them with support. The next step on our journey is to offer training.”
